

New Bedford. Dec 24. 1841.

Miss Arnold presents her compliments to Miss Weston and thanks her for her politeness in giving her the earliest information about the Autographs for sale at the Anti-Slavery Fair.

Miss Arnold regrets that she cannot immediately decide to purchase any of them, or make a selection, without knowing the contents of each volume or the price of each separate autograph - Miss A. has no friend in Boston from whom she could ask the favour of selecting for her and under the circumstances she will wait to choose from any collection that may remain after the sale -

Among the desirable names mentioned in Mr Quincy's letter, are many duplicates of those already in Miss A's collection but she is exceedingly obliged to him for his kindness in writing her thus promptly, and hopes still to avail of this opportunity to add to her memorials of foreign worth -

Mr. Charles Matthews, Dickens and George Cox, can be separated from the rest Miss Arnold would be happy to have them reserved for her by Miss Weston. from whom she hopes to learn what autographs ~~are~~ may be left - when her leisure will allow her to write upon the subject.
